Alger County's Sensation Has Been Exploded

SHERIFF COX WON'T SUFFER

But His Wife Won't Be With Him Any More-They Are Uncongenial-Facts in the Case.

Manquerra, Mich., March 27 .- Al ger county was thrown into convulsions of excitement twelve days ago by a charge of adultery, preferred against Sheriff Edward Cox by his wife.

His sister-in-law, Miss Edith O'Donnell, was staying in the jail residence. der room was next to Cox's, only a doset intervening. Before her arrival Cox had a door cut from his room into he closet, thus opening communica-tion with Miss O'Donnell's chamber. Mrs. Cox brought proceedings for adul-tery, claiming that Cox had passed through the door, and that the two, in her belief, had been intimate for years. All preparations were being made for a trial, and efforts were being made to remove Miss O'Donnell from the

Yesterday, however, Mrs. Cox with-drew her complaint saying that she was attailed that her husband and sis-ter were innocent. The original story of the affair, amended to show innocence, is as follows: On the night of March 13 Sheriff Cox was entertaining a party of friends, and whisky was passed round. Find-ing his guests imbibing too freely, Cox hid the bottle and went to his room, thinking they would leave. Instead of leaving, the guests became noisy and began a search for the bottle. One came up stairs, calling lendly on Cox. The latter would not answer, but barred his door. The man, on reaching the stair landing, opened Miss O'Donnell's

"You've made a mistake; Ed is not

The man then opened Mrs. Cox's door, and was ordered away. Then he tried the door of the sheriff's room, and finding it fast returned to his companions down stairs.

Cox then called to his wife to lock her ecor, and he himself went to Miss O'Donnell's room, and began moving the bed around so as to barricade the door. While thus engaged Mrs. Cox zame to the door and exclaimed: "Now I've got you; what are you do-ing in Edith's room?"

Education That Women Seek. It is curious to note that the form of edauxious to obtain is almost purely literary. At a time when men are loudly complain-ing that Oxford and Cambridge have al-most cut themselves off from the active life of the country, and that by neglecting the practical study of law, medicine, surgery and technical production they have resolved themselves into what would be called at a Continental university a gigantic "Faculty of Arts," women are crowding to these discredited institutions and eagerly taking up the abandoned "arts" as the latest and most complete form of intellectual life open to them.

While men are beginning to assert that they can no longer afford the luxury of a they can no longer afford the luxury of a university education, that they must leave that either to the men of leisure or the future schoolmasters and teachers, women turn to it as perhaps the most practical opening left to them. Perhaps they are right. It is not impossible that in time women's hands may have a great share in the higher secretarial and educati work of the country. But there is no form of opinion more fluctuating than the views of women as to their place and possibilities

The change of ideal from that of house hold usefulness at the end of the last cen-tury to elegant usefulness at the beginning of the present century has been succeeded by a strong bias toward literature and culture. It is not impossible that this may in turn be replaced by an experiment in women's capabilities in the technical in-struction which is coming on as the practi-cal balance to the literary activity of the last few years.-London Spectator.
